Local Disclosures Help Ensure Seismic Activity is Covered

Have you ever noticed on the signature page of the myNHD that sometimes it reads “Map Not Available” for seismic activity, like landslides and liquefaction?

SEISMIC HAZARD ZONES

The purpose of the Seismic Hazards Mapping Act is to regulate development in areas determined to have increased risk of the seismic hazards of liquefaction and earthquake-induced land sliding. The California induced landslide hazard zones. Although not all areas of the s areas. Liquefaction is a seismic hazard in which sediments below soils comprised of sands and silts that are within 40 feet of the phenomenon that can result in damage to structures.

☐ MAP NOT YET RELEASED BY STATE

☐ MAP NOT YET RELEASED BY STATE

The reason why is because all NHD companies have to report the hazards from the state, but if the state doesn't have access to them, then they dismiss it as “map not available” Unfortunately, that doesn't help you or the seller.

Because NHD companies are not regulated the state does not require them to report from the local level municipalities. We at myNHD, however, know that if there may be actual knowledge of seismic activity that exists on the parcel it needs to be reported to help keep the seller and sellers' agent protected. We gather that information directly from all 482 local municipalities within the state of California.

It may not be easy or cheap to get this information, but it's always the right thing to do.

Do your maps leave you guessing?

MyNHD has easy to read aerial maps that won't leave you wondering whether or not the property is in or out of a natural hazard zone.

A white dog is sitting on a blue background. A speech bubble next to the dog says "TO STAY ON TOP OF YOUR NHD REQUIREMENTS...". Below the dog is a red button that says "Join Our Newsletter Today!" and a myNHD logo.

A comic strip with five panels. The first panel shows a woman talking on a blue phone, saying "CHERYL, I'M USING myNHD.com FOR ALL MY NHD REPORTS. BUT PLEASE DON'T TELL NANCY!". The second panel shows the same woman on a red phone, saying "HONESTLY, SUSAN... WHO DO YOU THINK I AM? OF COURSE I CAN KEEP A SECRET!". The third panel shows the woman on a blue phone, saying "THANKS, CHERYL... YOU'RE A TRUE FRIEND". The fourth panel shows a man's face, saying "HEY NANCY!!!... SUSAN USES myNHD!!!". The fifth panel shows a woman's face, saying "NOTE TO SELF : PUT PEPPER IN CHERYL'S COFFEE!".
